WHY IT PAYS TO WORK WITH A PROFESSIONAL DESIGNER

Kitchen or bath remodeling projects can range from upgrades to elaborate transformations, a process that can be overwhelming and quite stressful. The myriad of product choices and design options available make kitchen and bath projects far more complicated and challenging than any other part of the house. That's why so many smart homeowners choose to work with a professional kitchen and bath designer.

A qualified professional designer can alleviate much of the stress commonly associated with home renovation projects and ensure that any time and money you invest is well spent.

A designer who is certified or accredited within the kitchen and bath industry offers added value, because his or her comprehensive knowledge in space planning and construction can provide innovative and cost-effective solutions for the trickiest problems.

When choosing a designer, look for an industry-trained kitchen/bath professional from a reputable firm that has been in business for many years (and is likely to be in business for years after you complete your project). Ask to see past projects, a portfolio and references.

Morris Black is proud of our team of highly-experienced kitchen and bath design professionals. Here's what they bring to your project:

- Career-oriented designers who understand the latest design trends, finishes, and products, as well as the technical aspects of good space planning and design.
- Skill in listening carefully to your needs and ideas, and translating them into unique designs that are functional and complement your lifestyle.
- Beautiful plans and renderings to help clarify and visualize your concepts and designs.
- Experience in coordinating colors and textures to create pleasing palettes that bring your plans to life.

LET YOUR PASSION SHOW!

Creating the space of your dreams with a qualified, professional designer should be fun and rewarding. Here are a few suggestions on how to get the most out of your relationship with your Morris Black designer.

Set an investment goal.

Make this step one, before you begin your project. Your designer cannot give you budget-friendly advice without a bottom line.

Show your designer what you like.

Convey your needs, your preferences, and your vision in both words and pictures. Collect photos from magazines, Instagram, Pinterest, Houzz and the Morris Black website. This will give your designer a place to start in creating a design especially for you.

Keep an open mind.

Be open to new and different ideas. Your designer will come into the project with a fresh viewpoint and a lot of knowledge and experience and may suggest an interesting out-of-the-box design. This is a major investment and you may not want to settle for the status quo.

When you have a plan, stick to it.

Once underway, changes cause extra expenses and delays. Review the final version carefully; once you are satisfied and understand the project scope thoroughly, move ahead with confidence, knowing that you have an experienced team supporting you every step of the way.
